4. [REDACTED] resignation does not reflect dissatisfaction with his work in ORR. His new position sought him and it turned out to be an opportunity in terms of professional development, responsibility and income which he could not turn down. His new position is in the Planning and Coordinating Department [REDACTED] where he will be assistant to the division head. He will have a variety of responsibilities including capital budgeting, new production development and distribution, foreign production and marketing and preparation of policy position papers. He will be located in Houston, Texas.
